Horner, sixty-two years of age and for thirty-three years is the group, died the district of the district. Joseph J. Cans propose to pass some questions and put some emphasis on what the Democrats are proposing to do. a peaceful death.

The late Mr. Horner was one of the well-known family that has for years been settled on the Hamakua coast, He was connected with Kukaiau plantation banking officials. Such a procedure will for many years, and was well liked by naturally arouse the ire of the business for many years, and was well liked by all those who knew him.

Joseph J. Horner was born in San Francisco, December 8, 1850. He came with his father to Maui in 1879 and, in 1883, removed to Kakaiau, where he remained till the time of his death.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS CALL EACH OTHER NAMES.

By Ernest G. Walker.

(Mail Special to The Advertiser.) WASHINGTON, May 13 .- It may be all very well to look on with amazement at the fashion in which the great candidates for the presidency are rending one another, but what about the campaign that will begin in July, after both the national conventious have adjourned? And mention is made of "both the national conventions" beause President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt are not the only candidates for the high office who are biting and gouging one another. There are large and gaping wounds which the Democratic aspirants have inflicted upon one another and which will hardly heal during July and August, while the forces are resting for the autumnal struggle.

Of course, as soon as the Chicago convention has adjourned there will be an unprecedented demand for large quantities of healing balsam. It will be liberally applied, whoever may be the nominee of that convention, and there are hopes that during the weeks clapsing between the nomination and the hard combat for electing a President for four years, the balm will Some of the be more or less effective. terrible things the Republican candidates have been saying about one another will be forgotten or will less ugly in retrospect, when the cry is onward against the common political Bourbons Also.

But the Bultimore convention will be unable to adjourn without an almost animated and bitter, but it has not at-tracted so much attention from the country, simply because the Democratic Champ Clark headquarters have said about Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, will make excellent Republican campaign documents three or four months from now it nominated at Baltimore, which is becoming less and less probable.

And the way the Woodrow Wilson headquarters have sailed into Champ Clark folks is a caution. It has mostly been put down in typewriting and files of the product have been kept by the Republicans for future reference. Of course, William J. Bryan has been much out upon the stump denouncing Governor Harmon and Oscar W. Under wood, both of them presidential aspir-ants, and Harmon and Bryan have gotten into a white hot controversy, almost as pointed as that between Taft and Roosevelt.

Good for G. O. P.

Perhaps congress will remain in session for a month or two after the con-ventions have adjourned. It may not be altogether a bad thing for either party if it is so. It may be especially good for the Republicans if this hap-pens. The Democratic house will continue its struggle for doing things to catch unwary voters, and, with the attention of the country no longer upon the presidential nomination contest, it will not be so difficult to focus public sentiment upon the peculiar perform-ances that are in progress at the south

One of these is the investigation of the "Money Trust" as to which the country has been hearing much. That investigation, however, promises to be come a feature of the presidential cam-paign. Mr. Business Man in every State of the Union will probably want to know all about what the Democratic louse means by this investigation. For instance the committee on banking and currency sent out requests, which amounted to demands, that every mational bank furnish the committee with information about all its loans, the se-curity therefor and the names of the

To be sure as soon as his was well under way it was discovered that the house of representatives did not have authority to do that. The comptroller of the currency has, but now bills have been introduced to give congress of either of its bouses authority to look into the books and records of national banks. When those bills come up for

The business men of every town and city of the United States will not take very kindly to any project for making public the amount of loans they have at their local banks or otherwise with world. And just why the Democrats should rush into such a fool procedure, from their own standpoint is not easily understood. But Bryan has been clam-oring for such an investigation and he seems to be having his way about a lot of things, although Democrats say he is not running the party any longer.
